

Day 5

Free day. We visited St Georges Cathedral at Jerusalem (Anglican Church)

1st June 2018

St Georges Cathedral at Jerusalem (Anglican Church)

If you just want to a quiet and serene place to rest in the middle of the busy pilgrimage —visit St. George’s Cathedral in East Jerusalem. The stately stone structure is a little bit of England in heart of the Middle East. Constructed in the 1890s and named for the patron saint of England, it is the home parish for the Episcopal Diocese of Jerusalem, which covers five countries. The complex includes a pilgrim’s hostel and St George’s College, a residential education centre offering courses on the Holy Land to both lay and clergy from around the world. We had a prayer in the church and relaxed in their beautiful garden before having our lunch. After our lunch, I had the privilege to sit and sing few Tamil songs in the empty church with my family. I will always treasure that experience
